I, PERSONALLY

Perpendicular pronoun government, which now has reached a new high in Germany, has one unfailing characteristic.

It is marked in every instance by a steady exodus of capable officials from the back door.

These men leave, not because they are incapable of doing their work well, but because, being capable, they cannot adjust themselves to a situation wherein they are not permitted to do their work well.

Whenever their judgment is at odds with that of the head of the government, political necessity dictates their expulsion. The head man can do no wrong, just as in former days the king could do no wrong.

Thus, government, instead of being devoted to advancing the interests of the nation, is made to devote itself to the interests of the political clique which controls it.

This has happened conspicuously in Russia, which time after time has been "purged" its official class; in Italy, where Premier Mussolini himself fills the ministries of war, navy and aviation and controls the rest; and now in Germany, where Chancellor Hitler has seized control of the war ministry.

To the extent that the same trend has been followed in the United States, where government by perpendicular pronoun still remains anathema to the majority, Americans have a means of measuring their own danger from the unfailing characteristic of personal government.

NUTSHELL

When the tumult and shouting died, when the little businessmen had sorted out their hats and were headed home, and when the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune were being swept up, did the new deal save the nutshell left in Washington by the resolutions committee of the conference?

If it didn't, it passed up an interesting and valuable relic. Condensed into a column of newspaper space, the committee's recommendations embody everything the government needs to know about the national state of mind at this particular moment.

Furthermore, the gist of the thing was boiled down to 24 words in Suggestion No. 6: "We recognize that social reform is necessary as a part of progress, but urge that it be not so rapid as to disrupt industry."

If one purpose of the conference was to check a cross section of representative national enterprise to help in the determination of policy, the government now knows it is considered fully as important out where the people live to do things with measured forethought as to do them.

TO SCOUTMASTERS

The national office of Boy Scouts of America sensibly suggests that newspapers planning to say something nice about the organization's celebration of its founding 28 years ago say it about scoutmasters.

It should be something like this: "To the scoutmaster... through whose moral and physical leadership, and through whose personal example, scouting is possible within our community, we dedicate a monument. May his life be richer and happier because he has touched the life of a boy."

Here, though, is a case where gratitude, though acceptable, isn't expected. For scoutmasters, like all persons who do something which merits praise, don't need to be praised to make them feel good. They did the praiseworthy thing in the first place because it made them feel good, which is the best proof man can show offhand that civilization must be getting somewhere despite the handicaps placed on it.

SYMBOLIC JITNEY

Things like this simply aren't done, of course. They merely happen, which gives them a poignancy all their own.

A new nickel will be placed in circulation next month. The law says a change can be made every 25 years, and the well known buffalo nickel comes of age Feb. 21.

The new nickel will show Thomas Jefferson on one side and his home, Monticello, on the other. It is undoubtedly coincidence that the coin which honored the almost extinct buffalo on one side and the vanishing American on the other now is to mark the passing of Jeffersonism and the sumptuous architecture he believed was essential to man's happiness.

O. O. MCINTYRE
NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—That dusky Harlem gal Josephine Baker is again the amazing dancing sensation of Paris, following her marriage to a rich white Parisian. Many thought her popularity might suffer with the reports of her terrific flop at the Winter Garden here a year ago.

She danced off in almost dead silence. But Paris hailed her with more fervor than ever. Reactions abroad are often puzzling. Over in Moscow the colored singer Paul Robeson is so idolized in his concert and dramatic roles that he is likely to remain permanently.

Bette Davis is probably the favorite female movie star in Europe. While Chaplin is something of a favorite everywhere his most enthusiastic receptions are in Japan. Before the revolution in Spain, the elder Fairbanks was far and away the biggest box office draw among the dons.

In London they still have a warm spot for Tallulah Bankhead, and for almost ten years shouting Sophia Tucker has been one of the most popular night club warblers. They also like Belle Baker. And strutting Harry Richman can open almost anywhere at any time.

The talk of hotelism has been the come-back of the venerable Hotel Astor under guidance of the one-armed Bob Christenberry. When he was appointed to his post four years ago, the Broadway debacle had set in and the entire street, as well as the famous inn, was in the depths of a physical, financial and social depression. Christenberry had had a colorful career as a marine. In the front line trenches one day an enemy hand grenade fell at his feet. He picked it up and threw his right hand out of the trench with the grenade, thereby saving eleven lives and his own. As a first step in jousting the Astor out of its rut, he had a million spent on improvements. He operates on a revision of the old saw of the hotel world. In his book, it reads: "The customer is not always right but the right customer is never wrong."

Donald Ogden Stewart and Bob Benchley, long time friends, are reputed the drollest comedians extant when teamed at private parties. So often were they jockeyed into free entertainment that someone tells me—and it's likely exaggeration—they will no longer attend functions together. However, the gift of comedy eventually hangs heavily on its practitioners. Wherever they go they are expected to keep everybody in stitches. It has driven a number into isolation. Comedians generous with their comedy, such as Frisco and Jack Osterman, so often face long stretches of "at liberty." Mark Twain in later years said: "People should pay for a good laugh the same as for a good painting. Each is a phase of art."

Hope Williams has been seen at some of the auspicious openings this winter after a season or so of semi-retirement. A few years ago she somehow caught the fancy of playgoers with her loping walk, metallic and draggy voice—plus an acid cynicism she mastered rather expertly. Every young boarding school girl so tried to achieve the same lope and vicious speech that it got to be a headache. Oh, yes, Miss Williams was three-sheeted as of social prominence, and that often helps in the New York build-up.

Speaking of acting, some photographers were around today to get poses of the Boston for a magazine. He didn't care much for it at first and barked his head off when the bulb flashed. But finally he seemed to get the idea and was posing all over the place, staying put wherever posed. There is a streak of "ham" in most dogs. Alf Loyal's famous stage poaches worked far better when the audience was friendly and they never tired of coming back for bows. Paul Seydell's Spotty—the ace of performers—trembles like a leaf upon receiving an unusual burst of applause, and tugs to get back and do his stunt over again.

Disillusion: The white-haired secretarial lady next table at Schrafft's last evening finished her meal with a float of brandy in coffee and a cigarette. And then gazed out in one of those unseeing ponders. Grave problems at the office and all that! But in a little while she glanced about furtively and from a handbag took out a tabloid and spread it at a certain comic strip.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, February 9

Opportunities of a surprising nature are forecast from the very strong lunar aspects, with the possibility of some behind-the-scenes influence probably having force. However, hard work, steady-fastness, practical plans and initiative should also have a constructive influence. It is a time for pushing old, new as well as distant affairs with excellent results, with travel or change assisting developments.

• If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very successful and generally progressive and prosperous year. Some change or travel seems necessary in promoting affairs. Distant, old and new matters may thrive by the application of practical plans, diligence, fidelity as well as by the aid of a secret, subtle or undercover influence. Insurance, a will or gifts may contribute to prosperity.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, industrious, faithful and ambitious. A strain of subtlety or diplomacy in its nature may contribute to its success, as should its kindly and generous impulses.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

INSANITY
AS ONE result of the trying and stressing period through which we are passing, the nervous system of almost every citizen has been placed under great strain.

I am happy to say there has been no marked increase in the proportion of those who suffer from what we call "mental disorders."

If this is really the fact, it is rather remarkable. We now have better understanding of mental disease and mental health. This accounts for the blessed escape from an increase in the terrible blight of insanity and the lesser forms of mental disturbances.

There has been a marked change in the medical attitude toward mental diseases. It was customary in olden times to consider a mentally sick individual as definitely insane and probably beyond the possibility of cure. The unfortunate victims of mental disturbances were treated in an inhuman and certainly unscientific manner. No hope for cure was offered them.

Today, very, very few sufferers from mental instability are labeled as hopelessly insane and incurable. As a matter of fact, many of these cases are due to temporary causes, the effects of which will disappear. Sometimes the symptoms result from severe mental strain. With proper care and scientific attention the trouble can be cured.

I cannot go so far as to say that all mental disorders are curable. There are many that do not respond to any known form of treatment. These patients must be confined, but, even so, confinement does not necessarily mean there is no hope for improvement, or full recovery. Fortunately, mental disorders often respond to special treatment and hygienic care.

Essential Factors

Such factors as the state of nutrition, the general physical health, the home care, the environment during infancy and early childhood, bear a definite relationship, not only to physical health, but to the state of the mind. A child who grows up under poor surroundings and is deprived of needed nourishment and proper guidance may develop a mental disorder with a distorted outlook on life. He may become non-social, anti-social, or even insane.

When these factors are kept in mind and dealt with as they should be, it is certain there will be a decrease in mental disorders. Nervousness, hysteria and other preventable forms of mental ill health are definitely declining in number. Undoubtedly, this improvement can be traced to better care of infants, children and adolescents.

Early child guidance, social education, improvement in child health, as well as medical care during early life, are definite preventives of mental disorders. It is our responsibility to see that these advantages are available to all our youth.

"Women In Love" by May Christie

CHAPTER I

The Delafields sisters were having a conference. The youngest, Ann, a nineteen-year-old, was no longer a child. Facts were facts, and she stood the stark necessity of the money. The combined ages of the three might be less in sum total than they were in reality. Ann was thirty-three, but in this crisis, she should be a girl. She was to support three husky bachelors—the words were Ann's—when we're our intelligence, health and youth to help him?"

It was five o'clock on an afternoon of late October. They had moved that day—from the smart residence on Sutton Place to a three-story house in the past four years, from which, in the past four years, they had stepped forth for their individual debuts at an exclusive hotel—to this second-floor brownstone walk-up, between Lexington and Third Avenues. The Delafields, children on roller-skates yelled in the street. But Ann there was challenge in the air.

A delightful challenge! On her slim, willing shoulders and rested the responsibility and the major annoyances of the "movies." Claire and Bernice had been bored and piqued. But Ann had a figurative Saint Joan, saving her country.

"The trouble with you two girls," she said now briskly, "is that you want to continue a champagne existence on a beer income."

"But I adore champagne," pouted beautiful Bernice, aged twenty-one, the lookest at herself in the mirror across the large, shabby living-room, and what she said delighted her, so that the pout slid off. She turned furtively.

"Only fools like working," contributed Claire, the eldest by one younger sister, but who prided herself on being astute. In fact, knowing her onions!

"Bunk!" said Ann sharply. "Drones are out, and"—wildly shaking her metaphors, but emphasizing her point—"from now on, let's grease it in! Get that straight!"

"You sound like a scrubwoman," Claire volunteered Bernice, her eyes transferring itself from the mirror to the clock. Time to knock up a shakel of cocktails! Freddy, uncertain, fascinating Freddy, was liable to walk in upon them at this hour. Freddy must be entertained in the manner in which the park Avenue (accent on the feminine) had so thoroughly accustomed him.

"And what's little Miss Fix-It going to do?" sneered Claire, flicking a cigarette from the slim gold case she had bought with her bridge winnings. The cigarette danced from her thin, carefully aged lips. She struck a match, inhaled, tilted her pointed chin, half closed her eyes. Two tiny columns of smoke issued from the well-shaped nose she was convinced was an exact replica of a movie beauty.

Ann thought, half irritably, half indulgently: "How inept they are, how incapable of facing reality!"

"The trouble with you two girls," Ann said briskly, "is that you want to continue a champagne existence on a beer income."

How on earth to make them understand the worse-than-rocky status of the Delafields, financially speaking?

Mother had taken to her bed under the cloak of nerves. In any crisis, as far back as Ann could remember, Mother's escape had been via the route of a heart that was "fluttery."

It was dreadful to query the authenticity of this, thought Ann, but it was plain as the nose on your face (Ann had a delightfully piquant, tip-tilted, cheerful nose) that though Mother could go through an all-the-clock-round of Society functions that might well have made a strong man wilt, her cardiac organ only acted up when she was crossed—and practically collapsed in the face of calamity.

Dad was kind, and tired, and gray, and pathetically grateful to the bankers—or was it the receivers who had swooped down on the firm of which he'd been the head?—for retaining him in the reorganized company as a $60-a-week employee.

"I'm going into business," Ann announced firmly.

"Modelling? Bah!" Claire yawned elaborately.

"Nothing of the sort! I intend to start from the ground up, using every iota of gray matter the good Lord may have given me!" In the breast pocket of Ann's smart, simple tailored suit was tucked the letter of introduction she had today wrangled at great pains from peppery old Tom Barclay, grandfather of a school chum and one of the two owners of Barclay and Reiss's big department store. But it would be unlucky to speak of the letter before presenting it.

"You're not the only one with brains, and there are more ways of making a living than one—if you're smart, that's to say," shrugged Claire, emphasizing the adjective. "Contract's my game. You've nagged me for playing so much. But I shall turn it to good account. What's the matter with my giving lessons up and down Park Avenue?"

Blonde Bernice who had gone out to the kitchen for the wherewithal for cocktails now returned with a tray bearing a bottle of bacardi, a small bottle of grenadine, a pitcher of lemon juice and a bowl full of ice cubes. An array of glasses, too, adorned with rampant rooster, and a big, silver-topped cocktail-shaker of cut crystal in a delicate design that—being a relic of the good old days—had most the exact equivalent of her father's weekly salary.

"If the worst comes to the worst, I wouldn't mind modeling for ads," she drawled. "Freddy's bound to know lots of spots where I'd fit in. I guess Freddy himself could use me."

"Use is right, Bernice!" and Claire laughed mockingly. "How any girl could be such a fool about a selfish little beast!"

But at this moment the selfish little beast himself sailed in on the sisters. Despite roly-poly-ness of contours, Freddy's movements had an ephemeral quality, an airy lightness, as it were, that were indicative of his character.

As Bernice had found, alas! but never would admit, Bernice adored Freddy.

He was an interior decorator in the lighter, more fantastic vein. His milieu, professionally and socially, was Mayfair's, supper-clubs and cocktail-bars on whose walls he splashed the aberrations of his brain. Indeed, it was Freddy's best that his best creative work was done when he was tight. "And as I've never seen him anything else," Claire jibed, "I s'pose that makes him a genius?"

Ann stared at Freddy now and wished he were at the bottom of the sea—though it was a safer bet he would soon be at the bottom of the cocktail-shaker.

"What ho! Hail to the home of the Three Graces!" He kissed Bernice, avoided Claire, frisked over to Ann to repeat his osculation but she dodged him.

"This is no time for shenanigans. Freddy. We're going to work, we three. We're having a conference."

"Let's drink to it, then. I'm parched, Bernice, put the punch in the planter—painter!"

She poured him one. "He drank and she refilled his glass. They all drank. Ann thought: 'She's mad about him,' and a wave of pity and affection swamped her irritation with Bernice."

There was a ruthlessness, a hardness like a diamond about Claire. Claire could take care of Number One. But Bernice was different.

After his fourth bacardi, Freddy started to rave about the newest, most exclusive supper-club and cocktail-bar (one referred to it as "a fashionable bar") which he himself had named "The Laughing Pig"—"Le Cochon Qui Rit"—on East 54th Street.

"The decorations are divine! I was inspired! Can you imagine walls and ceiling done with farmyard scenes—principally pigs, of course—and each little sow and porker with a semi-human face that—er—heehee!—has a definite resemblance to our—hahaha!—our friends, or—here the genius wiped his eyes—"our enemies!"

"Most apt, I'm sure," said Claire, "Love among the pigs! Priceless!" "Get me a job there, darling," pleaded Bernice. "Couldn't I be a barmoid or something?"

ROTARY MEETS AT COLUMBIANA

Plan Joint Banquet; Eulogy Paid Late Harvey S. Firestone

COLUMBIANA, Feb. 8.—Rotarian Walter E. Firestone gave a talk Monday evening at the meeting of the Columbiana Rotary club at Valley Golf club, speaking on the subject of his own vocation, electrical wiring.

Firestone told of the interesting developments in the electrical world, which are occurring so rapidly that only experts can keep up with them. Wiring costs are as low as they will ever be, he thinks, due to the necessity of adding more circuits and heavier wiring for modern appliances. He exhibited samples of fuses and at the conclusion of his talk, answered a number of questions.

The club voted to accept the invitation of Benjamin Firestone post, American Legion, to join in the annual Washington's birthday banquet Feb. 22 and will dispense with the usual meeting on the 21st. Thirty members were present this week, also three visitors: Rotarian Neil Knowlton, Salem; H. A. Tuttle, Youngstown; and E. L. Wolfe, local agent of the Pennsylvania R. R., the latter being the guest of C. F. Moser.

Eulogizing Firestone

Dr. P. W. Trader paid a brief tribute to the memory of the late H. S. Firestone, eulogizing him and his great work in aiding particularly in the construction of Firestone park and the local cemetery addition. President Frank Griffen appointed Dr. Trader to represent the club in joining in the local observance and honoring of Columbiana's most distinguished son in connection with the funeral ceremonies.

The Men's club of the Christian church has elected the following officers for the year: President, Ralph Peterson; vice president, Walter McGeehen; secretary, Charles Berron; treasurer, J. A. Todd; press correspondent, Rev. G. A. Funk. The next meeting will be February 18, when Ladies' night will be observed. A special program is being arranged.

Mrs. J. C. Wilson will extend hospitality to members of the W. C. T. U. Friday at a coverdish dinner at 12:30. Members are to bring a coverdish and their own table service. This is the annual dues-paying meeting.

Probe In Rector's Death Is Under Way

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga., Feb. 8.—Parishioners of old Christ church gathered today to bury vice-fighting Dr. Charles H. Lee as Coroner J. D. Baldwin promised to "get at the bottom" of the rector's slaying "if we have to call every man and woman on St. Simons."

The 71-year-old Episcopal churchman was killed by a shot from the dark as he sat working over a sermon in the rectory Saturday night.

Coroner Baldwin, taking cognizance of the theory of friends that the rector's candid comments on wrong-doing might lay back of the killing, said he ordered the inquest for Wednesday specifically "to find out about all the evil doing on the island."

Dr. Lee's pronouncements against vice, his friends explained, usually were made in face to face encounters with individuals rather than from the pulpit.

The investigators had for clues merely two .38 caliber bullets, one of which killed the rector a short while after the first shot missed him, and paper reproductions of footprints found outside the rectory.

Dr. Lee was a second cousin of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Theater Attractions

Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond in a scene from "She's Got Everything", featured on a double bill at the State Wednesday and Thursday.

Two excellent romantic comedies make up a double bill which will be featured at the State Wednesday and Thursday, following the last showings tonight of the Sonja Henie film, "Happy Landings."

The first double feature picture is "She's Got Everything," teaming Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond. Others in the cast include Helen Broderick and Victor Moore, Parkyakarkus, Billy Gilbert and Solly Ward.

Creditors Arrive
The story opens as irate creditors descend on the swanky home of Miss Sothern to recover merchandise unpaid for, while the young lady herself sleeps peacefully, and her aunt, Helen Broderick, strives to save everything possible from the wreck.

When Ann awakens and is advised that her supposedly wealthy father has left her penniless, she determines to work to liquidate the debts. Victor Moore, however, holder of a large claim, believes that matters can be settled more quickly if Ann marries a wealthy man, and gets his fellow creditors to agree, and from that point on the complications pile up.

Miss Sothern is first installed as secretary to Raymond, a highly eligible bachelor who is thoroughly engrossed in his wholesale coffee business. Moore, with the help of Miss Broderick, concentrates on promoting a romance between the pair, a task made no easier by the alternate refusals of the principals to cooperate.

Parkyakarkus and Billy Gilbert as creditors lend their comedy to the antics of Moore and Miss Broderick, and Solly Ward scores as an itinerant hypnotist.

The second picture is "She Married an Artist" featuring Lili Deste,

AFL HEADS CUT OFF CIO UNITS

Three Unions Expelled; Lewis, At Washington, Unperturbed

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 8.—Only minor details of its program remained ahead of the American Federation of Labor's executive committee today after the expulsion from its ranks of three unions affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

William Green, ALF president, said he would let the public decide whether the expulsion order constituted an open declaration of war with John L. Lewis' CIO.

The charters of the United Mine Workers, the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and the Flat
Glass Workers were revoked.

Lewis Unperturbed
Lewis, in Washington, said the action "is unimportant and without significance."

Membership in the expelled unions was said to total 662,000 workers, although AFL leaders said the mine union had only 423,000 dues payers out of its 600,000 members.

"We endeavored to heal the breach and bring them back," said Green. "We failed. The American Federation of Labor's executive committee has now met the challenge."

Green agreed with questioners that his 48-year membership in the Mine Workers union, Coshocton, O., local, automatically terminated with the ouster order. He now holds office as ALF president on the strength of an honorary membership in the Musicians' union.

He said he would send a formal notice of withdrawal to the United Mine Workers.

The latter had charged him with dual unionism because of a local AFL charter granted to the Progressive Miners, UMW rival in Illinois. Green declined to say if he would join this group.

J. R. McCormick, president of the Coshocton local, said the union would be unaffected.

Dues-Paying Member
The AFL president was one of three dues-paying members of the 48-year old union. His resignation cut to 13 the list of members. 11 of whom are exempted by union regulations from paying dues.

One of them is Hugh Green, brother of William and secretary of the local which has been inactive for several years following shutdown of the Morgan Run mine
April 13, 1923.

When UMW chieftains ordered
William Green's expulsion, Morgan
Run local refused to act.

Brides On Social Security Rolls Are Urged To Send In New Names

Compliance With Board's Request Will Prevent Confusion In Keeping of Accounts

Brides of 1937-38 who obtained social security account cards before they were married were requested today by Edwin V. Faulhaber, manager of the Youngstown field office of the Social Security Board, to send in their new names to prevent confusion in the keeping of their wage accounts for federal old-age insurance.

Cards Available
A card for this purpose, designated as "employee's request for change in records," is now available at the Youngstown office of the Social Security board, located in Erie Terminal building or at any one of the board's 322 other field offices located in strategic centers.

This card provides space both for the newly acquired name and that used in applying for an account number. Corrected account number cards will be sent to those who report their change of name.

Faulhaber explained that since wage accounts are kept in the name the worker gives the employer, individuals who change their legal names should correct their records to insure the accurate recording of their wages. Wage information reports filed by employers and transmitted to the Social Security board indicate that many employees have gone to work on new jobs under their new names without notifying the board of the change.

This, Faulhaber explained, complicates the keeping of their accounts and might make it difficult to ascertain the full amount of the benefits to which they will ultimately be entitled.

Correct Mis-statements
Social Security account card holders may use their new application form also to correct misstatements as to age, address, or any other inaccurate declarations that may have been made.

Faulhaber stated that while the board would accept without question a new age declaration, the acceptance should not be regarded as final since an employee may be called upon to furnish proof of age on filing a benefit claim.

By making available the new card the board believes that thousands of persons who have neglected to correct their records will now take advantage of this simplified procedure.

QUAKER CAGERS SEEK NINTH VICTORY TONIGHT

Mullins Quintet Trips First Half Champs In Overtime Tilt

SHASTEN FIVE BEATEN SECOND STRAIGHT TIME

Sinclair's Defeated By Mullins In Overtime Class A Game

Shasten-Sinclair Service Station cagers, champions of the first half of the Class A City Basketball league, suffered their second consecutive defeat of the second half last night, losing to Mullins, 36 to 34, in an overtime tilt at the Memorial building.

It was Mullins' second win in three games, half game to date. The contest was extended into an extra frame when the score was tied at 32-32 at the end of the regulation playing time.

Mullins rallied in the second and third quarters to knot the count after trailing by eight points, 24 to 16, at halftime. The Bodymakers outscored the Sinclairs, 10 points to three, in the third period and six points to five in the fourth frame.

A game between the Moose and Althouse Dodgers was also scheduled for last night's Class A program, but this contest was postponed until a later date.

Two Class B games were played along with the Class A tilt. Whit's Garage spanking the Krauss Heels, 33 to 16, in the one fray, and the Methodists trouncing Demings, 34 to 21, in the other.

By defeating the Krauss quintet, Whit's Garage increased its string of victories in the second half to four in a row and retained sole possession of the league leadership.

The Garagemen had but little trouble in chalking up the victory. After getting off to a slow start in the first quarter to gain a one-point lead, they turned on the steam in the second period to increase their advantage to eight points, 17 to 9, at the intermission.

The Methodists made their win over Demings their third in four second half games. The M. E. quintet trailed in the first quarter, but hit its stride in the second frame to go out in front, 18 to 8, at halftime.

Salem Lad's Hopes for Bright Ring Future to Receive Test

Don West, Winner of Two Bouts by K. O., to Meet Toughest Opponent Tomorrow Night

Whether or not a scrappy young Salem fighter has a bright future ahead in amateur boxing ranks will be determined to a large extent tomorrow night when Don West, 16-year old Salem High school freshman, battles Enoch Henry of East Palestine in one of eight bouts on Jimmy Perry's amateur show at the Memorial building.

West is one of the most promising of the crop of amateur fighters training under the colors of Perry's A. C. and has scored three consecutive victories to date.

Two of West's wins have been by the K. O. route, while the other victory was gained on a decision. A good right hand punch with plenty of power behind it is one of the big reasons why West has been able to knock out his opponents.

The Salem youth will be up against his toughest opponent when he squares off with Henry, who is classed as the best of the amateur sluggers in the East Palestine district.

Henry has seen West fight twice and asked for a bout with the Salem youth on both occasions. Perry believes that West is capable of defeating Henry and is convinced that if Don can catch the East Palestine slugger with a solid right hand punch he will send him to the mat for the count.

In addition to West, five other young Salem fighters will appear on the amateur show.

Bill Haymasher will battle Kid Freeman of Alliance in the main bout of the program; Carl Wanner will meet Kello Munk of East Palestine; Freddy Cox will face Joe Unger of East Palestine; Eugene (Greek) Altomare will take on Kid Mulch of East Palestine and Bob Shannon will square off against Jackie Ealy of Palestine.

Starting time for the show is 8:30 sharp.

Mrs. Hahn Carries Fight to High Court

CINCINNATI, Feb. 8 — Anna Marie Hahn's fight to escape the electric chair was headed today toward an Ohio supreme court test.

Losing her case in the court of appeals yesterday, attorneys for the blonde 31-year-old former hotel maid said they would appeal to the highest state court and the "U. S. supreme court if necessary."

Mrs. Hahn, convicted last November of the murder by poison of 78-year-old Jacob Wagner, retired Gardner, burst into tears as she read reports of the decision in the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus.

Warden J. C. Woodward reported the woman sobbed "uncontrollably" after reading the dispatches.

Mrs. Hahn is scheduled to die March 10.

Confer On Proposal For Home Building

LISBON, Feb. 8.—Stark county commissioners were expected here today to confer with Columbiana county commissioners on a new proposal to erect a school building at the Fairmount Children's home near Alliance.

Voters of both counties rejected a bond issue for the building last November.

RELIGION GOES TO NAZI TRIAL

Future of Christianity Itself In Germany Is At Stake

ally, but against Nazification of religion.

Christian churches have been terrified by the spread of the so-called neo-pagan religion sponsored by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Christ, "the Jew," as the anti-Christians refer to the Savior, has no place in this new religion. Instead, it is built round Hitler, who supplants Jesus as the Messiah. The neo-paganism is essentially racial, designed to work for the glory of German blood.

Probably the most dangerous aspect of the situation from Hitler's standpoint lies in the fact that the army, the Reichswehr, as a whole stands with Germany's traditional Christianity.

It would seem that the time is close when Hitler will have to decide whether he is to apply the mailed fist to the churches to make them submit or permit them a greater degree of liberty of action.

Observers Barred
BERLIN, Feb. 8.—Secrecy cloaking the trial of the Rev. Martin Niemöller on charges of grave offenses against the Nazi regime was made more complete today as the last non-official observers were barred from the special trial court.

Three church leaders who were permitted to remain in the courtroom yesterday as witnesses for the confession synod were excluded for the remainder of the trial.

Defense testimony was disclosed to have emphasized that the 46-year-old Niemöller always had been an ardent patriot, citing that he served as a submarine commander during the World war, in 1918 fought against the Spartacists, forerunners of the Communists in Germany, and that he voted the Nazi ticket as early as 1924.

Niemöller has been under arrest since last July 1 charged with malignant vilification of the Nazi state, its leaders and institutions, with violation of the decree prescribing purposes for which the pulpits may be used and with inciting disobedience against the state.

"GAG" ON FARM BILL IS FOUGHT

Administration Attempts To Force Measure Through House

designed to prevent land taken from soil-depleting crops from being used to feed dairy cattle.

The conference committee modified the provisions, leading a number of members from dairy states to declare their opposition to the entire bill. They said the modification would permit the spread of dairying to new regions and thus increase competition.

Sees Program Rejected
Rep. Coffee (R-Mo.) said corn farmers in his district would reject the crop control program because of "plain coercion" by the government.

The legislation continues the present soil conservation program, but also sets up an elaborate system of controls over surplus marketing of cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice. Farmers must approve or reject these provisions. The revised bill provides for a modest beginning of crop insurance.

If the house approves the bill, it probably will be taken up by the senate tomorrow. After its consideration in that chamber, administration leaders expect to propose shelving of the anti-lynching bill.

The southern filibuster against that measure was continuing today, although Senator Bilbo (D-Miss) agreed to interpret his address so that Senator Guffey (D-Pa) could speak in favor of the bill.

County Schools Expand In Music

LISBON, Feb. 8.—The musical education of rural school children under County Superintendent W. E. Roberts' jurisdiction will be given a decided impetus, Mr. Roberts believes, with the establishment of two music classes for elementary teachers in the county.

The classes meet Monday and Thursday evenings of each week at Hanoverton and Rogers, respectively. George Bretz, county music supervisor, is instructor and 88 of the 110 teachers eligible have enrolled.

Forty-six meet at Hanoverton and 42 at Rogers.

Frozen Assets

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—When the coupons on $200,000 worth of New Rochelle bonds failed to clear through the banks in 1934, City Director of Finance Walter J. Brennan thought nothing of it.

But when they still had not been presented for payment after the Jan. 15 interest date this year, he became curious.

Through the original purchasers, he learned that the bonds were sold to a woman who "won't be inconvenienced" by going to her safe deposit box to clip coupons more than once every five years.

Common Sense About Constipation

If you knew that your constipation was caused by something left out of your food, wouldn't it be just common sense to put that something back?

Your trouble may be caused by nothing more than this. For the most common kind of constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in the bowels—you need some food that passes on through the stomach without being digested. Kellogg's All-Bran supplies this. It gives the bowels the bulky mass they need to work properly. And All-Bran also gives them the intestinal-tonsil, vitamin B, which helps restore their tone.

Eat All-Bran as a cereal or baked in muffins. But however you eat it, be sure you get some every day. And drink plenty of water. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.
